

14. FINANCIAL PROBITY

The University requires researchers to be open and honest in all financial and commercial matters relating to research and its funding. In particular, researchers must:

- comply with the University's Financial Regulations and follow the University's required financial procedures in the development and execution of the research, including requirements to keep clear and accurate financial records;
- give participants information on how and by whom the research is funded, including any benefits which will accrue to researchers and/or their School/the University/ research partners or to the funders;
- not offer payments to research participants at a level which could induce research participants to take risks that they would otherwise not take, or to volunteer more frequently than is advisable or against their better interests or judgement.
- responsibly manage project funds to ensure that expenditure is in line with the purpose and timeframe for which the funding was granted.
